Dear Mother/Guardian,

Following on from the Coffee Morning with the Omnibus Theatre please see below:
Omnibus Theatre in Clapham would like to invite you to participate in a FREE storytelling programme, 575 Stories.

575 Stories is a five-week course where you will tell, create and share stories in the exquisite surroundings of 575 Wandsworth Road. We will develop our skills in storytelling, whilst gaining confidence in our ability to shape a story and bring it to life.

The workshops will take place at National Trust property 575 Wandsworth Road. Home of Kenyan author, Khadambi Asalache, 575 Wandsworth Road is a beautiful work of interior design. Every surface is covered in intricate wooden carving, put in place by Khadambi as a means of covering up recurring damp issues.

We will be inspired by the rooms and objects in the house, using them as starting points to find our own tales. Stories of home and beyond: stories of your kitchens; recipes and remedies; tales passed on to you from grandparents; stories of travel; songs and worship; memories and dreams.

The course is led by experienced storyteller and writer Sally Pomme Clayton. She creates a safe, positive and encouraging atmosphere that values all stories, helping them to be born.
